BACKGROUND

3 On November 20, 2007, in United States v. Kahre, et al (2:05-cr-121-DAE-RJJ), a federal 4 grand jury in the District of Nevada returned a third superseding indictment charging defendants 5 Robert D. Kahre and others with felony income tax violations and other federal violations. Crim.
6 Doc. 1671 (charging violations of 18 U.S.C. §§ 371, 1014, and 1343, and 26 U.S.C. §§ 7201, 7 7206(1), 7212(a)).

8 On May 21, 2009, voir dire and a second jury trial began in United States District Court for 9 the District of Nevada, the Honorable Judge David A. Ezra, presiding. Crim. Doc. 2430.

10 On May 26, 2009, the Las Vegas Review Journal (the "R-J") published a two-page article 11 about the trial, entitled: "Employer's gold, silver payroll standard may bring hard times." See Ex. 1 12 to Civ. Doc. 2 (attaching article). The article summarized the defense's position that, far from 13 being guilty of the tax charges, Kahre was "an American 'hero.'" Ex. 1 (Civ. Doc. 2) at 1. The R-J 14 article also quoted one of the prosecutor's remarks to the effect that the case was about "money, 15 greed and fraud," and that Kahre and others had defrauded the Internal Revenue Service. Id.

16 Over the next few days, various online commenters posted responses to the R-J article. See 17 Ex. 2 to Civ. Doc. 2 (attaching 42 pages of comments). One commentator wrote: "The sad thing 18 is there are 12 dummies on the jury who will convict him. They should be hung along with the 19 feds[.]" Several days later, another commentator wrote: "I bid 10 Quatloos that [one of the 20 Government prosecutors] does not celebrate his next birthday."

21 In response to the comment about hanging the "12 dummies on the jury . . . along with the 22 feds," the Government served the R-J with a first grand jury subpoena, seeking disclosure of all the 23 online commenters' identities. The R-J declined to comply and, on June 7, 2009, published an 24 editorial criticizing the breadth of the first subpoena. See, e.g., Civ. Doc. 2 at 2, n.1.

25 On June 9, 2009, one of the alternate jurors in the Kahre trial sent Judge Ezra a message
26 regarding that juror's knowledge of the R-J's editorial. See Ex. 2 (Civ. Doc. 2), Tr. at 5-6. Judge
Ezra conducted a sealed hearing to investigate whether the juror could continue to serve, a

1 question ultimately resolved in the affirmative. During the hearing, Judge Ezra expressed concern
2 with some of the more virulent comments posted by the anonymous commenters. See Ex. 2 (Civ.
3 Doc. 2), Tr. at 28 ("There is a reasonable basis for the government to be concerned about at least a 4 few of the comments on the blog which were . . . quite threatening."), 29 ("What we have out there
5 are people making not even veiled threats, direct threats at jurors about what could happen to them 6 if a particular result is not reached . . . and I am concerned about that."). Judge Ezra opined that if 7 a comment had been posted

8 for the express purpose of attempting to threaten the jury into reaching a particular 9 verdict, that's a legitimate grand jury investigation. If the purpose of the grand jury inquiry is just a fishing expedition, then I would suggest not.

10 Ex. 2 (Civ. Doc. 2), Tr. at 13.

11 On June 16, 2009, plaintiffs filed Civil Docs. 2-4 in the above-captioned case. In Civil 12 Doc. 2, three of the purported R-J commenters (calling themselves "DOES") asserted their 13 purported "standing" to challenge the first subpoena, and advanced various reasons to proceed 14 anonymously. Doc. 2 at 5-8. The balance of the motion (filed by the ACLU as putative 15 intervener) advanced several reasons why the first subpoena should be quashed. Id. at 8-29.

16 That same day, the United States served the R-J with a superseding subpoena, which 17 replaced the first subpoena. Pursuant to the superseding subpoena, the grand jury called upon the 18 R-J to provide identifier information for only two posters who commented in regard to hanging the 19 jury and the prosecutor seeing his next birthday. The grand jury no longer sought identifier 20 information for all posters.

21 On June 17, 2009, this Court ordered that responses to Civil Docs. 2-4 be filed by June 22, 22 2009. Sealed Minute Order (June 17, 2009) at 1. On June 17, 2009, the ACLU sent two letters to 23 this Court and parties. First, the ACLU advised this Court of its "plans to file an amended motion 24 to quash and amended motion for protective order." Id. at 1. Second, in a letter to AUSA Eric 25 Johnson, AUSA J. Gregory Damm, and Mark Hinueber (General Counsel for the R-J), the ACLU 26 referenced the superseding subpoena, and observed that "the parties to the subpoenas appear to have reached agreement about what will be disclosed." The ACLU nevertheless "ask[ed] that the

1 Review-Journal delay compliance as long as possible . . . in order to allow the district court time to 2 rule on the Motion to Quash." Id. at 1-2.

3 On June 18, 2009, notwithstanding the ACLU's letter, the R-J fully complied with the 4 superseding subpoena. Thus, in a letter dated June 18, 2009 from the Roger Myers, Esq. (the R-J's 5 counsel) to AUSA Johnson, the R-J "enclosed . . . the documents in the possession of the Review-
6 Journal responsive to your above-referenced subpoena." Letter from Myers to Johnson (Jun. 18, 7 2009) at 1. Mr. Myers' letter enclosed the information sought by the superseding subpoena.

8 On June 22, 2009, plaintiffs filed their amended motion. Civ. Doc. 9. In it, plaintiffs (who 9 now number four "DOES") assert that even the narrower, superseding subpoena should be 10 quashed. Id. at 3 (citing the two R-J comments referenced in the superseding subpoena), 27 11 (suggesting that even the "narrowe[r]" subpoena is still "an attempt to squelch criticism and 12 dissent"). The legal bases in support of plaintiffs' amended motion to quash are largely identical to 13 those set forth in their first motion of June 16, 2009.

14 As shown below, the R-J's complete disclosure, viewed against the backdrop of the binding
15 precedent, renders the amended motion moot. Accordingly, that motion must be dismissed.¹

16 II.

17 ARGUMENT

18 Given the R-J's compliance with the superseding subpoena, plaintiffs' amended motion is 19 moot and presents no justiciable case or controversy in an Article III court. Federal courts decide 20 only "cases" and "controversies." U.S. Const. art. III, § 2. As the Ninth Circuit has explained, the 21 Constitutional "case-or-controversy" requirement is closely aligned with the doctrine of mootness:
22

24 ¹ On June 22, 2009, AUSA Johnson spoke to Margaret A. McLetchie, Esq. of the 25 ACLU regarding the ongoing litigation. From this conversation, AUSA Johnson concluded 26 that Ms. McLetchie was not aware of the R-J's compliance on June 18, 2009. Moreover, plaintiffs' amended motion does not acknowledge the R-J's compliance. Given the secrecy rules that govern grand jury proceedings, the United States Attorney's Office deems it appropriate to file this amended motion (like our original motion to dismiss) under seal, and to vouchsafe to this Court's sound discretion the question of whether (and when) to unseal it.

1 A case becomes moot whenever it loses its character as a present, live controversy
2 of the kind that must exist if we are to avoid advisory opinions on abstract 3 propositions of law. The question is not whether the precise relief sought at the 4 time . . . [the case] was filed is still available. The question is whether there can be 5 any effective relief.

6 Earth Island Inst. v. United States Forest Service, 442 F.3d 1147, 1157 (9th Cir. 2006) (internal 7 citation omitted). Similarly, the Ninth Circuit has emphasized that "an actual controversy must be 8 extant at all stages of review," and explained that a "case is moot when the issues presented are no
9 longer live or the parties lack a legally cognizable interest in the outcome." Council of Ins. Agents 10 & Brokers v. Molasky-Arman, 522 F.3d 925, 933 (9th Cir. 2008) (emphasis added) (internal 11 citations omitted). The threshold inquiry, then, is whether the omnibus motion -- which seeks to 12 preclude the R-J's compliance with the superseding grand jury subpoena -- raises issues that are 13 now "no longer live" or for which there can be no "effective relief." Council of Ins. Agents, 522 14 F.3d at 933; see also Earth Island Inst., 442 F.3d at 1157 (quoted in Siskiyou Regional 15 Educational Project v. United States Forest Service, 565 F.3d 545, 559 (9th Cir. 2009) ("effective 16 relief" test for mootness).

17 These principles, coupled with the R-J's compliance, underscore the present mootness of 18 plaintiff's action. As shown above, plaintiffs seek to preclude an event that occurred on June 18, 19 2009 -- that is, the R-J's disclosure of the identifying information regarding two commenters, as 20 requested by the grand jury. Accordingly, "live issues" do not now exist, and "effective relief" can 21 no longer be provided. See Center for Biological Diversity v. Marina Point Development Co., 566
22 F.3d 794, 804 (9th Cir. 2009) (suit to enjoin developer moot because agency delisted bald eagle; 23 "Because the bald eagle has been delisted, no present controversy can remain," and "nothing we 24 decide can properly give the Center the relief it sought"). Plaintiffs' amended motion is thus moot.

III.

CONCLUSION

2 For the foregoing reasons, the Government respectfully requests that this Court enter an 3 Order that: (1) grants the motion to dismiss; and (2) dismisses Civ. Doc. 9 and dismisses case no.

25 ² Because the mootness issue disposes of this entire action, it is not necessary to right to oppose every argument raised in Civ. Doc. 9, should opposition-on-the-merits become necessary.
